

Item No. 479.

The Royalty Adjustment Act of October 31, 1942 provides for the adjustment of royalties to be paid to Government contractors for the use of inventions in aid of the prosecution of the war where the rates or amounts of such royalties are believed to be unreasonable or excessive by the head of the Government agency which has ordered the use of a particular patented or unpatented invention. This law remains in effect until six months after the termination of the war. CIA concurs in the position of the Department of Justice that permanent legislation of this nature should be enacted, in view of the fact that CIA may find it necessary to utilize these provisions in order to avoid excessive charges.
